Understanding cables

Every cable message consists of three parts:

- The top box shows each cables unique reference number, when and by whom it originally was sent, and what its initial classification was.
- The middle box contains the header information that is associated with the cable. It includes information about the receiver(s) as well as a general subject.
- The bottom box presents the body of the cable. The opening can contain a more specific subject, references to other cables (browse by origin to find them) or additional comment. This is followed by the main contents of the cable: a summary, a collection of specific topics and a comment section.

To understand the justification used for the classification of each cable, please use this WikiSource article as reference.

11. (S) A usually reliable source on January 5 conveyed additional details to us about NATO SYG Anders Fogh Rasmussen's December 17 interactions in Moscow with President Medvedev and PM Putin that were not reflected in the SYG's report on the visit (reftel). Based on information from someone present at the Moscow meetings, the source reported that while Russian President Medvedev was polite, neither he nor PM Putin had expressed any real interest in cooperating with NATO. Putin allegedly told Rasmussen that NATO no longer has a purpose and it was in Russias interest that NATO no longer exist.

¶2. (S) The source claimed that in the SYG meeting with the PM, Putin had not let Rasmussen sit down before challenging him with the allegation that NATO planned to put missiles in Bulgaria, and demanding further information. This reportedly threw the SYG off balance, although the source did not indicate how he responded.

¶3. (C) Private Office Deputy Director Signe Bruderset maintained the same positive tone as the SYG's trip report, when queried whether START or missile defense were discussed during the Moscow visit. PM Putin and President Medvedev focused on the European Security Initiative, she said, adding that FM Lavrov had observed that Russia was not in debt to the United States for the U.S. change in missile defense plans in the Czech Republic and Poland. In her view, Medvedev and Putin had decided for the time being to try to "play ball" with NATO to see if it could be useful or beneficial to Russia.
